TO THE EDITOR OF "THE DAILY PRESS." SIR,-Has not the time arrived when the labours of Mr. Mitchell-Innes, who is at present filling the posts of Coroner and Police Magistrate, should be removed to some other Government appointment where his deficiency will be less conspicuous to the public and not so destructive to the administration of justice?

I allude principally to the case of Borrow, who now stands-charged with the murder of Antone Lundin, second mate of the American ship St.

All readers of the Daily Press must of course have read the report of the case as reported in your issue of the 22nd instant and surely the Administrator's attention must have been attracted to the fact that the Coroner actually alluded to Borrow as "the prisoner" all through the proceedings, and this before the jury had found a verdict. Borrow had not been arrested on the ties. In the defendant's reply to the petition ciently dear that an assault had been committed, and the first point in dispute was the capacity in the prisoner, having been advised to say nothing by this solicitor at this stage of the proceedings, and not not which the plaintiff attended the sale and bid for told them of any assault. As the case stood they had the property in question. The defendant alleged it that the prisoner had shot the deceased and they that owing to the plaintiff being well acquainted had not had sufficient evidence to show that any aswith English, he requested the latter to bid for sault had been committed by the second officer; there was only the evidence of the cook as to that, and that and not been confirmed by the third officer or the carpenter. If the evidence established clearly that there had been an assault it might then have been in the power of the jury to find a verdict of manulaughter; but as the prisoner had reserved his defence and boy had nothing but the evidence for the prosecution offere them, the jury could only return a verdict of purder. Of course he could not decide the case for thom; he could only give them the legal view of it. Borrow has been committed to take his trial at the Supreme Court; so, for the present I do not further allude to his case, and I would not have drawn attention to it to the extent I have were it not that I consider I am performing a public daty in doing so.

It must not be forgotton that the self-same gentleman who has thus displayed his gigantic legal mind is not only the Coroner of Her Britannic Majesty's Colony of Hongkong but is a Stipendary Magistrate, and thus divides his power between his two appointments, each partaking in equal degree of his qualification, of which I leave the public to judge of the value. This position of affairs is much too serious, 'o be passed over as a joke, and while there are gratlemen of tried ability in this Colony able and willing to perform properly the duties of Coroner and Magistrate their services should be secured before law and justice as administered in the Police Court of this Colony become the laugh-

As throwing light upon the question of howfar torpedo-boats are able to keep the high seas in foul weather, the recent voyage out to the Pirmus of the six torpedo-boats bought by the Greek Government of the Vulcan Company. Stattin, is full of interest to naval officera. The torpedo-boats supplied to Greece are of the class called sea-going. Their displacement is 85 tons; length, 123 feet; breadth, 15 feet 3 inches; draught of water aft, 6 feet 6 inches. They are fitted with engines of 1,000 indicated horsepower, propelling them at a maximum speed of 19 knots an hour. The reports published state that the last of the six boats arrived safely in Greek waters on the 24th ultimo, and that all of them behaved like first class sea-going vessels, notwithstanding the fearful weather which some of them experienced. The two boats which arrived out last were delayed the one ten, the other fourteen days, owing to collision and grounding respectively, and the repairs consequent thereon, but the other four reached their destination in about twenty-one days, including stoppages at Yarmouth, Plymouth, Gibraltar, and Malta for coaling. They met with very heavy weather in the Skagerak, the North Sea, the Channel, and the Bay of Biscay. Yet they are stated to have arrived in the Pirmus with their machinery and hulls in the most perfect condition. The reports do not show how the crews fared in foul weather, the recent voyage of French torpedo-boats from Cherbourg to Toulon, round Spain, is of value. The French report states distinctly that the want of ventilation and the absence of comfort, together with the vibration, make it impossible for the crews to stand more than thirty-six hours of continuous navigation, and long voyages seem therefore to be out of the question.

The Law Times says :- Those who lament the decay of forencie eloquence have much reason in their sorrow; those who wonderst the same decay either are not familiar with the courts, or neglect to consider the influences which are at work. In these days we seldom hear a powerful address, except in a criminal court or from the mouth of counsel who speak with almost the same authority as a judge. But the cause of the Barometer failing is to be found not in the advocate but in | Temperature the judge. Counsel, or some of them, do not lack | Humidity ability to speak, but the opportunity of speaking Direction of wind ... E.S.E. without interruption from the Bench. A strikthe past week. The ex-Solicitor-General was addressing to the jury a powerful appeal for the defendant in Bryce v. Rusden. The action was brought by the Native Minister of New Zealand against an historian, whom he charged with libel Sir John Gorst had striven to justify the tone of the book by reviewing the policy of the New Zealand Government towards the natives; he then proceeded to expound his views of the law of libel-views which did not commend themselves to Baron Huddleston. . We are not concerned, at this moment, with the accuracy of Sir John Gorst's proposition, but with the fact that the learned judge thought fit to 1886 interrupt the flow of the speaker's elequence by a reference to the authorities. This is a matter of everyday occurrence. A fervid oration is stopped, or a clear argument is obscured, for no better reason than that some incidental point occurs to the presiding judge. A desultory dis-cussion follows, and the jury are removed from the influence of the speaker, or lose the thread of the argument. We maintain that this pracwise possess, causes a weary waste of time. In containing also a similar Table regarding the long ran, the speaker will not be denied, and the long-deferred argument will come out, in fragments but not curtailed. Nor do we see that any danger of injustice would ensue if judges confined the half of the collequial dicts in which | per Dozen. On Card Board 20 Cents each. they now indulge to their legitimate place-the summing-up or the judgment. Such a reform would encourage a revival of forensic elequence and immensely lighten the labours of those hum. ble but useful animals, the reporters.

It is clear that, with so many operas pouring from his ever-ready pen, he occupied a greater number of singers, and he had always something soothing to say, even when he was not particularly pleased; for instance, of Ricquier, who used to sing with a downright false intentation, he said: "Ricquier sings

AN OLD-WORLD STAIRCASE The grandest example, having regard to dimensions, occurs in the palace at Porsepolis. This staircase leads from a plain in the beautiful valley of Bendamir to the summit of a terrace, out of which it is taken. It consists of two sets of two flights of stairs, each with a broad landing-stage between them; the two lower flights diverge to the level of the foundation, the two upper converge to a common landing-place at the top, The shallowness of the pitch, each, stair being only three or four inches in height, constitutes an ascent so easily graduated that horses may be ridden up and down, while On First-class Chinese the width of 22 feet admits of a cavalcade of ten abreast. Less noble in size, but distinguished by the character of its ornamentation, is the next staircase which opens to the view, somewhat out of line, when that just described has been mounted. It conducts Auber was sometimes surprised at the to the summit of the central terrace, and is grandeur of his fame, says a writer in Temple | composed of four single flights : two of them Bar.
